Thinking Out Loud

At this writing something like 250 merchantmen have been sunk by German, and, perhaps Italian submarines, in the Caribbean and along the Atlantic coasts of this country and of Brazil. Thus far, according to Walter Lippmann in the New York Herald Tribune, ship building has lagged behind ship sinkings. Walter Lippman is undoubtedly the most competent commentator on public affairs in this country. When he finds cause for national anxiety in the ship building and ship sinking ratio, the rest of us can feel certain that he has weighed all the facts and has given us conclusions that may well be alarming.

As a matter of fact, mixed with our emotional reactions to the Pearl Harbor catastrophe, is one of shame. Never before have the American people suffered such humiliation. But the ship sinking score is day by day adding up to something, that, from the Axis oint of view is bigger and better than Pearl Harbor. The total sinkings to date accounts for what would seem far greater destruction of property values than the damage done by Jap bombers and machine guns at Pearl Harbor. The loss of life is not so great, for which we can be thankful. This is due more to chance than to Axis design, but even so the toll of life among American seamen has been extremely high.

A great many Americans are coming to the conclusion that a newspaper man in charge of the navy department is not a happy arrangement. Frank Knox was a notable editor, one of the best in American journalism. A citizen thinks much about this war and weighs the many factors that enter into its waging was willing to wait and see what Knox had on the ball, if anything. Now we begin to doubt that he is the man for the job. We conclude that the appointment of Knox of not Stimson, was another of those political cards which President Roosevert plays to trump his opponent's trick. By appointing two old line Republicans to the cabinet he did much to reconcile a large section of the electorate to the New Deal. It may have been large enough to assure Roosevel's third term. Neither one of these has been conspiciously successful in the conduct of his office. We have a feeling that the Secretaries of War and of the Navy were somewhat in awe of their generals and admirals, and that toting up all the facts concerning Pearl Harbor would indicate that they were primarily responsible for the national humiliation inflicted there.

That is, of course, water under the bridge. Hindsight is always better than foresight, etc. But these ship sinkings continue without abatement. In fact the weekly loss is increasing. It is hard for a spectator to say what is wrong, but any observant American can come only to the conclusion that something is radically wrong. We recall that in the desperate emergency which faced the British in Dunkirk, a call went out to the owners of every row boat, sailboat, barge, tugboat, launch, in the coastal waters of the British Isle. They responded as one man and a defeated army of more than a quarter million was ferried across the channel in less than a week's time.

We can't say whether such a desperate expedient is the answer to the submarine destruction now mounting to terrific proportons but at any rate we think it should receive serious consideration. There are thousands of small ocean going boats along the Atlantic and in the Caribbean which it seems to us, might be used as sentinels along the routes that merchantmen habitually follow. We don't know how they should be armed, supplied or stationed, but we do believe that this challenge warrants a more adequate answer than aerial patrols, which thus far have failed to check the ravages of the undersea wolf packs.

There is a growing suspicion, also, that the enemy submarines are refueled in some hide-out close the scene of their operations. And, apparently, their number is increasing despite ocassional sinkings reported by the Navy Department. There is talk, much of it, of establishing convoys. It is a cumbersome and time wasting expedient when anything better can be devised. Against it stands the fact that the navy is already spread out thin in guarding convoys in the Atlantic and Pacific.

For many weeks now Americans have heard the tale of seamen burned to death in a sea of flaming oil, of drownings, of nightmare voyages in life boats, of Nazi tendeness and courtesies to survivors, and of huge losses of cargoes and ships. We believe the great majority of citizens are fed up with this situation, and that millions of people are looking to Secretary Knox with the cold glassy eye of suspicion. They doubt if he is the man for the job.

ANNUAL TAHOE FOREST GUARD TRAINING SCHOOL NOW UNDERWAY

The Tahoe National Forest fire training school opened yesterday at Miller Ranch on the Camptonville Ranger District. Those in attendance were Supervisor Guerdon Ellis, Assistant Supervisor Marc Edmonds. Associate Forester L. S. Smith, Staff Engineer G. E. Mitchell, Cental Dispatcher Ellwood M. Stone and Charles Arment, Jr. Fire Fire Prevention Officer J. D. Rafferty, Rangers Case, Delaney, Meggers, Hodgson, Beardsley, Land, Snider and protective assistants Wheeler, Chatfield, Dickey, Stone and Wright.

Supervisor Ellis in his opening remarks stressed the importance of fire prevention as well as the stepping up of forest fire fighting technique. Ellis impressed upon the staff the necessity of preventing the occurrence of fires as a defense measure and if they should occur the importance of extinguishing them quickly. This group will receive special training as instrucors for the main body of forest men who are to arrive for the training later in the week. They will also train the large force of forest volunteers who are daily signing up for emergency fire duty throughout the Tahoe Forest. The Tahoe training school will close Saturday with a large dummy fire in which the entire group of 110 men will participate.

Army Posts Japenese Curfew Regulations Here

Tuesday night army officers posted throughout the city proclamations by Lieutenant General J. L. DeWitt, commanding the Western Defense Command and 4th Army, forbidding all persons of Japanese ancestry living in Militay Area 2 of California to leave the area and placing them under strict curfew regulations.

The order effects about 10,000 Japanese, including the several families which in recent weeks moved into Nevada County.

Between 8 p. m. and 6 a. m. every night, all persons of Japanese ancestry must be within their homes. During daylight hours they cannot be more than ten miles away from home except when visiting a government agency in compliance with exclusion orders or to prepare for evacuation.

EBEN K. SMART ENTERS RACE FOR ASSESSOR

Eben K. Smart, who is known to almost every resident of western Nevada county, and who has been a Grass Valley resident for a great many years, formally announced his candidacy for county assessor last night. He is the third candidate to announce for the post being vacated by John M. Hammill, incumbent.

In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Smart pointed to the fact that he is entirely familiar with the work of the assesor's office in regard to evaluation of property. During the time that the city of Grass Valley assessed property here under contract, he served a term as assessor, and not only gained a good knowledge of property values, but also a basic understanding of the principles underlying that work. In announcing his candidacy he asserted that it is his intention to serve all of the people of the county fairly and impartially, with no concessions to individuals or groups.

He declared that he will conduct his campaign entirely on a non-partisan and independent basis, free of promises or commitments. He emphasized that he has made no promises whatever as to choice of deputies should he be elected.

Eben Smart, aged 43, is a native of Dutch Flat, Placer County, the son of the late Eben K. Smart, Sr., pioneer lumberman of Nevada and Placer counties. He was educated in the Grass Valley schools, and the University of California. He served in the U. S. Army in the World War. For a number of years he engaged in business here. Smart is married, has two children and owns his own home in Grass Valley.

For the past eleven years the assessor candidate has served as a civil employe of the State of California, the past few years serving as drivers' license examiner for Nevada and Placer counties.

Eben Smart's interest in the welfare of Nevada County is well demonstrated by his unflagging interest in enterprises for civic betterment. At the present time he is chairman of public information of the Nevada County Defense Council, a member of the Grass Valley Library Board, treasurer of the 17th Agricultural Distric Fair, and president of the state association of drivers license examiners.

In recent years he has served as president of the Grass Valley Baseball Association, Grass Valley Chamber of Commerce, Grass Valley Lions Club; past commander of the American Legion, member of the Grass Valley Board of Education, and in general, handyman for any civic enterprise needing assistance.

Perhaps he is best known for his services as master of ceremonies for charitable, promotional, fraternal and civic enterprises in the western section of the county.

Smart is now serving his third term as grand trustee for the Native Sons of the Golden West.

ROBERT PROCTOR IS MISSING

Word has been received here from the War Department that Robert Proctor, Jr., a lieutenant in the United States Army, is missing in action in the Philippines.

The War Department notified Mr. and Mrs. Proctor, Sr., of Nevada City that their son is regarded as missing It is probable, however, that he is being held captive by the Japanese.

Proctor is a graduate of the Nevada City High School and University of California. He was a brilliant student at both institutions. He went to the Philippines shortly after his graduation from the university.

REED SHURTLEFF MISSING

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Shurtleff of Sacramento, former Nevada City residents, have been informed by the war department that their son, Reed 21, is missing in action in the Philippines. Young Shurtleff was a first lieutenant in the field artillery.

Caught in the Riffles

The announcement by County Treasuer Frank Steel that he will retire from public office will pave the way for an early announcement by Deputy Treasurer Elma Hecker that she will be a candidate for the position.

Steel promises to submit his resignation to the supervisors at an "early date" and it is probable Miss Hecker will be appointed by the board to succeed the veteran county official. The title of "incumbent" may or may not help her in her efforts to succeed Steel.

Where is Brownie?

Brownie is just a dog but you would be surprised at the number of persons who have missed him and are inquiring about him.

Brownie has been missing from his usual haunts for more than a week new and friends of the dog are anxious to know what happened to him.

Brownie had regular habits. When he was hungry he generally called at Colley's, where he was given a handout. When it snowed he could usually be found on the Dickerman porch opposite the courthouse and during periods of rain he generally sought refuge in the post office.

Little had been heard up to this week on the district attorney race but developments during the past few days indicates there may be three candidates for D. A.—Incumbent Vernon Stoll, H. Ward Sheldon and James Snell.

At least one Nevada City man is at Dutch Harbor, which yesterday was bombed twice by the Japs. He is Harlan (Shorty) Pearce. And Dick Hoskins of Grass Valley is anxious concerning safety of his half-brother, Ed Wilson, who is a radio operator for the army on one of the Aleutian Islands. Wilson is the fiance of Dorothy Salisbury, assistant clerk of the evada County Selective Service Board. "Mac', general handy man, now has another collier to take the place of his pet which died recently. The dog was given him by Mr. and Mrs. Miles Coughlin. The imbibing of liquor too freely by a couple of high school students at the senior picnic at Lake Olympia last Friday has brought the threat from school authorities that future such future events may be abolished. The high school Class of '44 pesented Don Raney high school teacher, with a pen and pencil set as a token of appreciation. Raney soon becomes an ensign in the United States Navy. Mrs. Ed Martine collects precancelled stamps and then sells them, So far proceeds total $7.50, all of which has been invested in war stamps.

Ellwood Stone, local forest service dispatcher is the first casualty reported from the forest service training school at Miller ranch. It seems that Stone in his official capacity as camp boss has a deluxe tent set up as a headquarters which he and his assistant Charles Arment occupy to the accompaniment of good natured gibes from his campmates. According to Charlie, he was deep in dreamland on his first night in camp when he was awakened with a blood curdling screm from the direction where he had last seen Stone wrapped up in a sleeping bag. Arment upon turning on a light found that one of the local porcupines had contested Stone's right to his sleeping bag and that Ellwood and Mr. Porky were in a close embrace. Stone by this time was fully awake and with Charlie's help ejected his bedmate. Arment made the necessary repairs to Stone's person. Stone is now trying to find a volunteer to take over his duties as camp boss as well as his place in the headquarters tent.

The directors of the Lava Cap Gold Mining Corporation have declared a dividend of two cents per share payable June 30th to stockholders of record June 20th.

THE NAZIS DON'T SMILE

During the first year of so of the war, American observers in Germany kept reciting jokes being told by the Germans about their sacrifices and their leaders, and the implication was that the joking and sarcasm were sign of a declining morale.

The latest eye-witnesses out of Naziland, the interned correspondents and diplomats however tell a different story. There is less joking. Gloom is spreading over Germany. Mourning for the dead and fear of the future are much more onspiciously in evidence.

This it seems, is a far better sign that morale is really on the downgrade than the barbed gags the correspondents heard a year and more ago.

The moral is that anything that can be laughed about can be borne: only when it becomes too grim for laughter and joking does it begin to get really unbearable.

The lesson is in point here, too. For as long as we can kid ourselves and each other about rationing and taxes, tell harmless jokes about our leaders, and be genuinely amused by the propaganda efforts of our enemies, our morale is safe.

If we keep our sense of humor to help us carry it, no war burden can become really unbearable, however much we may be inconvenienced by it.

Wholesome laughter has disappeared in German, and has been stamped out in conquered Europe, but it will see America through.

TRAFFIC TOLL DROPS

There's one consoling feature of the nationwide reduction in the use of automobiles that helps to offset some of the inconveniences and downright hardships—a noticeable reduction in the nation's traffic death toll at least has made itself evident.

The national safety council reports traffic deaths in April were 14 per cent fewer than in April last year, and that the decrease for the first four months of 1942 amounts to seven per cent. This would seem to indicate that auto death are falling off more and more rapidly as the months roll by.

The council, furthermore, does not credit all this decrease in deaths to the fact that there has been less travel. On the contrarl, it believes motor travel in March was virtually the same as March, 1941. This probably means that, even if you don't notice it when you're on the open road, motorists actually are becoming more careful in their use of automobiles.

The most encouraging thing about the safety council's report, therefore, is the fact that deaths have significantly fallen off even before there has been a noticeable curtailment in travel. Thus it is reasonable to expect that gasoline rationing and further curtailment of motoring will bring an even sharper drop in the national death toll.

FEDERAL AID TO FIGHT FOREST FIRES GRANTED

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—California will receive a substantial share of forest fire funds which have just been voted by congress for war time protection of the national forests, according to a letter received yesterday by James Mussati, general manager of the California State Chamber of Commerce, from Congressman Harry L. Englebright.

Protest against proposed reduction of fire protection funds was registered with the California delegation in congress and with other officials concerned last March, when it appeared that congressional appropriations for this purpose were to be reduced. In his communication at that time, Mussatti pointed out that California is subject to a long and hazardous fire season; that one fifth of the state is in national forest areas; and that under war time conditions the possibilities of sabotage and incendiasism present a great danger.

The sixth deficiency bill, passed on April 28, restored the appropriation to $5,000,000, and in the latter received yesterday from Congressman Lea, he stated that the regular Department of Agriculture Appropriation Bill, just passed, carried an appropriation for an additional $5,000,000 making a total of $10,500,000 for forest fire protection purposes. Of the $5,500,000 appropriation, $2,500,000 is earmarked for use, under the Clark-McNary Act, for protection exclusively of state and private owned forest land.

STICK THAT PATCH ON!

A Fisherman's Tale

Around this time of year there are always a lot of tall fish stories going the rounds; most of them, just good entertainment but the other day I stumlbed on the real thing and I thought it worth telling.

Fishing season never opens, without finding me well on my way into the backwoods of Nevada County in my trusty Model T and this year was no exception.

I drove as far as I thought a car could go and then walked, fishing along up the Deer Creek canyon: getting very wet, enjoying the grandest scenery in the world but not having much luck in my fishing.

Before I realized it the shadows grew long; the day was almost over and it came to me that I better look around for a short cut to my car.

It had been a wonderful day and though I only had two small trout in my basket, I had enjoyed every minute of it. I soon found a foot path staight up the canyon wall; led to an old mountain cabin or one might strain a point, and call it a house. As I neared it the place became alive with barking dogs. An old man came from an outhouse, through the snarling dogs, cuffing them right and left and with his hand cupped to his ear waited for me to speak. I told him where I had left my car on the highway, and asked him if he could tell me of some short cut to it. He pointed to a foot path that would take me to the highway and eyeing the creel asked, what luck.

"Got pretty wet fer just two fish, didn't you? Come up and have a little drink—good fer you.

The idea seemed good so I gollowed him up onto the porch. He fumbled around under a honey suckle vine for a minute and brought forth—believe it or not — a little brown jug. I'd sort of like to know where he got the contents. It was the very best Scotch, the honey suckle vine could have been heather.

We sat on the porch railing and talked fishing; his home being right on fishing ground, so as to speak. I asked him if he fished.

"Fish, say we had more fish last year than we could use, fact, we gave them to everybody round here that liked trout.

"Every night for weeks, daughter fried big pan of crisp brown trout, ain't nothin' better. I'll tell you about it.

She and I live here, she works in Nevada City. I keep the place out here, and this time of year I allus find time to do a little fishing.

"Allus did, but this year she won't cook 'em. Last spring I got out my worm can and pole and goes right down where you came from and I'd toss in my line and I'd hook a trout almost as soon as it hit the water. There's a deep hole right there at the bend—and I could fill a lard pail with fine big fish in a half hour before dark .

"Every night I'd pack home all I could carry and daughter'd fry 'em in lots of bacon grease till they were brown and crisp on the outside and pink in—gee whiz they sure was good.

"One evening I caught the biggest one I have ever seen—he sure must have been the great grand daddy of all the trout in Deer Creek. Fact, he dragged on the ground when I brought him up the trail. Daughter's eyes stuck out and it being Saturday she said she was going with me next night. I fussed all day Sunday fixing her a line but she baked the big fellow for us—(Jim her beau and I) and he was the best of all.

"I just didn't feel so good about her goin'—had a feeling some way or 'nother she'd put the jinx on my fishing—and she sure did. Of course Jim had to go too and they squabbled around over where to fish till they ended up at my special pool and how his eyes did stick out when he see what I'd been doing while they were foolin.'

"I just pulled them in as usual, one after another—First thing Jim noticed the water sort of swirled, like a whirl-pool so he disappeared, and pretty soon here he comes with a rake. He had more fish than we could use by then so I couldn't say anything when he started to rake my pool.

"I'll be gosh-darned if he didn't rake up a weighted deer hide and some other parts of a long dead deer.

"Daughter looked sort of yellow and the first thing she said: 'No more fish for me as long as I live.' Well that's that—so I don't go fishing any more." I got up and picked up my ceel. 'Have another little sniffer fer you go—long walk you got. A door slammed somewhere and the old man quickly pushed the jug under the honeysuckle and I ambled on my way'."

DON'T STRETCH RUBBER LAWS

News in Verse Heard Over KJBS

Written by Harley M. Leete, Jr.

The patriot scoffs at a bootleg tire,
The black tire market rouses ire.
New tires, retreads and recaps too,
In many cases, not a few,
Have gone, in ways not very nice,
To illegal buyers —at a price.
Now this is not as it should be,
As any citizen can see.
Taking rubber from our common cause,
Is not only forbidden by written laws,
But goes against all common sense,
And strikes a blow at our defense.
But one group profits—that yellow race,
When we cut off our nose to spite our face.
For that's what happens when we evade,
The rubber laws that we have made.
If we stretch those rules a bit too much,
For pleasure riding, trips and such,
We'll find our actions snap right back,
And throw our program off the track.
Our army's needs come first, of course.
Let none of us bear that remorse,
That comes to those who steal a tire,
To satisfy a weak desire.
Illegally buying tires, you know,
Is about as bad, as misdeeds go,
In times like these, as really stealing.
No man of patriotic feeling,
Can really enjoy a pleasure ride,
On ill-got tires—if he has pride.
Not only because of the army's need,
For the boys who sweat and fight and bleed;
But also because essential use,
In civilian work, by this abuse,
Is greatly endangered—we must aid,
To see that law observance's made.
A discipline for every man,
Who wants to help us lick Japan.
Those little yellow men will grin,
If they think we're greedily dipping in,
Our precious dwindling rubber stock,
To wake up soon with a horrid shock,
And find that there is not enough.
Then the going would be really rough!
So we can help in one more way,
By conserving rubber every day!

"FOREST FIRES DELAY VICTORY—PREVENT FOREST FIRES" That's a watchword for all Americans determined to win this total war. U. S. Forest Ranger tacks up forest fire prevention poster.

FOREST SUPERVISOR ASKS HELP IN ALLEVIATING FIRE DANGER

Forest and range lands of the Tahoe National Forest face the most serious threat from destruction by fire in their history, states Forest Supervisor Guerdon Ellis. Heavy rainfall the past winter and spring has greatly increased the annual vegetation and added to the forest growth. In the dry summer months ahead, this abnormal growth will become a serious fire hazard.

The threats of sabotage and enemy incendiary air attacks are a great concern to forest officials, further states the supervisor. Such depredations would seriously retard the war effort. Tremendous waste to the natural resources of timber, forage and water would result from forest fires. Funds badly needed for the production of planes, ships, tanks, and guns would have to be spent in putting out forest fires. Lacking the CC labor of recent years, man power for putting out forest fires would have to be diverted from war industries and agriculture.

To meet the emergency, special fire crews have been authorized by Congress. Ellis announced. Undoubtedly additional crews still needed will be forthcoming. These crews will be given fire training at the annual fire school to be held this week on the Tahoe National Forest at Camptonville. Emphasis in instructing the fire force as to how forest fires may be prevented will be given, in order that the usual number of careless man-caused fires may be greatly reduced. The rangers of the Tahoe National Forest are asking the help of everyone to be on guard to protect the forest. Here is how everyone can help:

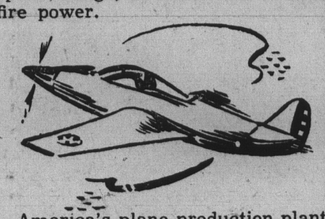
1—Call upon the forest ranger when entering the forest area. Learn from him first hand what the requirements are for smoking, for building camp fires, and what areas if any are closed to travel and use.

2—Report at once either by phone or messenger any smoke that is seen.

3—If one comes upon a fire in the forest, put it out. If one cannot, get word to the nearest ranger. If one observes suspicious actions on the part of anyone in the forest, report it to the neaest forest ranger at once.

With everyone doing their part to help, Ellis added, we can prevent and keep fires down in this most critical year.

The Army's fighter planes are the finest in the world and develop speeds up to 400 miles an hour. They cost approximately $100,000 each, provide fighter escorts for the huge flying fortresses, and combine speed, range, altitude and blistering fire power.



America's plane production plants are working over-time turning out thousands of these fighter planes. War Savings Bonds will help pay for them and the American people are committed to at least ten percent of their income to finance their cost in War Bonds. Every American, buying his share every pay day, will make it comparatively easy to supply our army and navy air corps with these supreme Eagles of the air.

Melodious Tinkling Of Cow Bells Marks Annual Migration Into Summer Grazing Areas

Nevada City residents have been awakened in the early morning hours for the past few days by the melodious tinkling of cow bells and the same time not melodious mooing cattle as they are being driven through Nevada City's streets to their summer grazing areas on the Tahoe National Forest. According to L. S. Smith, forest grazing expert, we should not become perturbed by the early morning interruption of our slumbers for in reality this is but another of our most important war industries swinging into action. In preparing for this yearly migration Smith has found that the grass is abundant and providing it is not destroyed by fire later in the year, the local cattlemen should be able to provide Uncle Sam's fighting men with a good share of prime beef. The grazing and raising of beef has been given a priority by forest officers outranked only by the actual suppression of forest fires.

The Tahoe forest last year grazed approximately 8000 head of cattle and 40,000 head of sheep. Permittees are charged a fixed price per head by the forest servic for grazing rights and 25 per cent of this money reverts to the county for roads and schools.

THANATOPSIS

the great poem of William Cullen Bryant, pictures the passing a man from this mortal sphere. It carries home to the heart a universal truth and offers those who grieve a noble consolation. The service we render to those who come to us in their hour of sadness is in accord with the spirit expressed by the great poet. They find in our ministration that consolaion of which he sang.

HAVE YOU LEGAL PROOF OF BIRTH

SACRAMENTO, June 4—(UP)—An estimated 850,000 persons residing in California in 1940 were without legal proof of birth according to a Bureau of Census report.

Of the total, 420,000 were males and 430,000 females.

J. C. Capt, director of census, estimated there were 54,000,000 persons in the United States in same category. The last previous estimate by the bureau was 60,000.000.

"Although a high percentage of births is now being registered in all states, many persons now living were born at a time when state registration systems were not so well established," Capt stated.

"With the present efficiency in securing registration of births, the number of persons without birth certificates will eventually dwindle to a negligible figure, but the census bureau estimates that the problem will remain a serious one for 40 to 50 years.

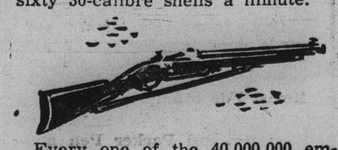
What You Buy With WAR BONDS

The Garand semi-automatic rifle, which is the standard issue today for the U. S. army, is superior to the old Springfield rifle in many respects. We literally need millions of these fast shooting powerful rifles to equip our army. They cost $85 each and are being manufactured at the rate of one a minute. They fire sixty 30-calibre shells a minute.



Every one of the 40,000,000 employed persons in America could easily buy one of these rifles for the army. Not that we need that many, but the reserve could go into shells and other much needed supplies. Buy more and more War Bonds and top the quota in your county by investing at least ten percent of your income every pay day.
